

What if booking a hotel was like making a green tech upgrade?

Clean tech innovation continues to impress, but for businesses trying to buy green tech solutions, the experience is far less efficient.

Step 1: Research

Your research will entail many phone calls, long hold times, and a few weeks wait to get prices. Hostel or hotel? Can't be sure.

Step 2: Choose your hotel

Narrowing your options is tough without filters. Odds of accidentally picking a campsite or motel in the wrong city are high.

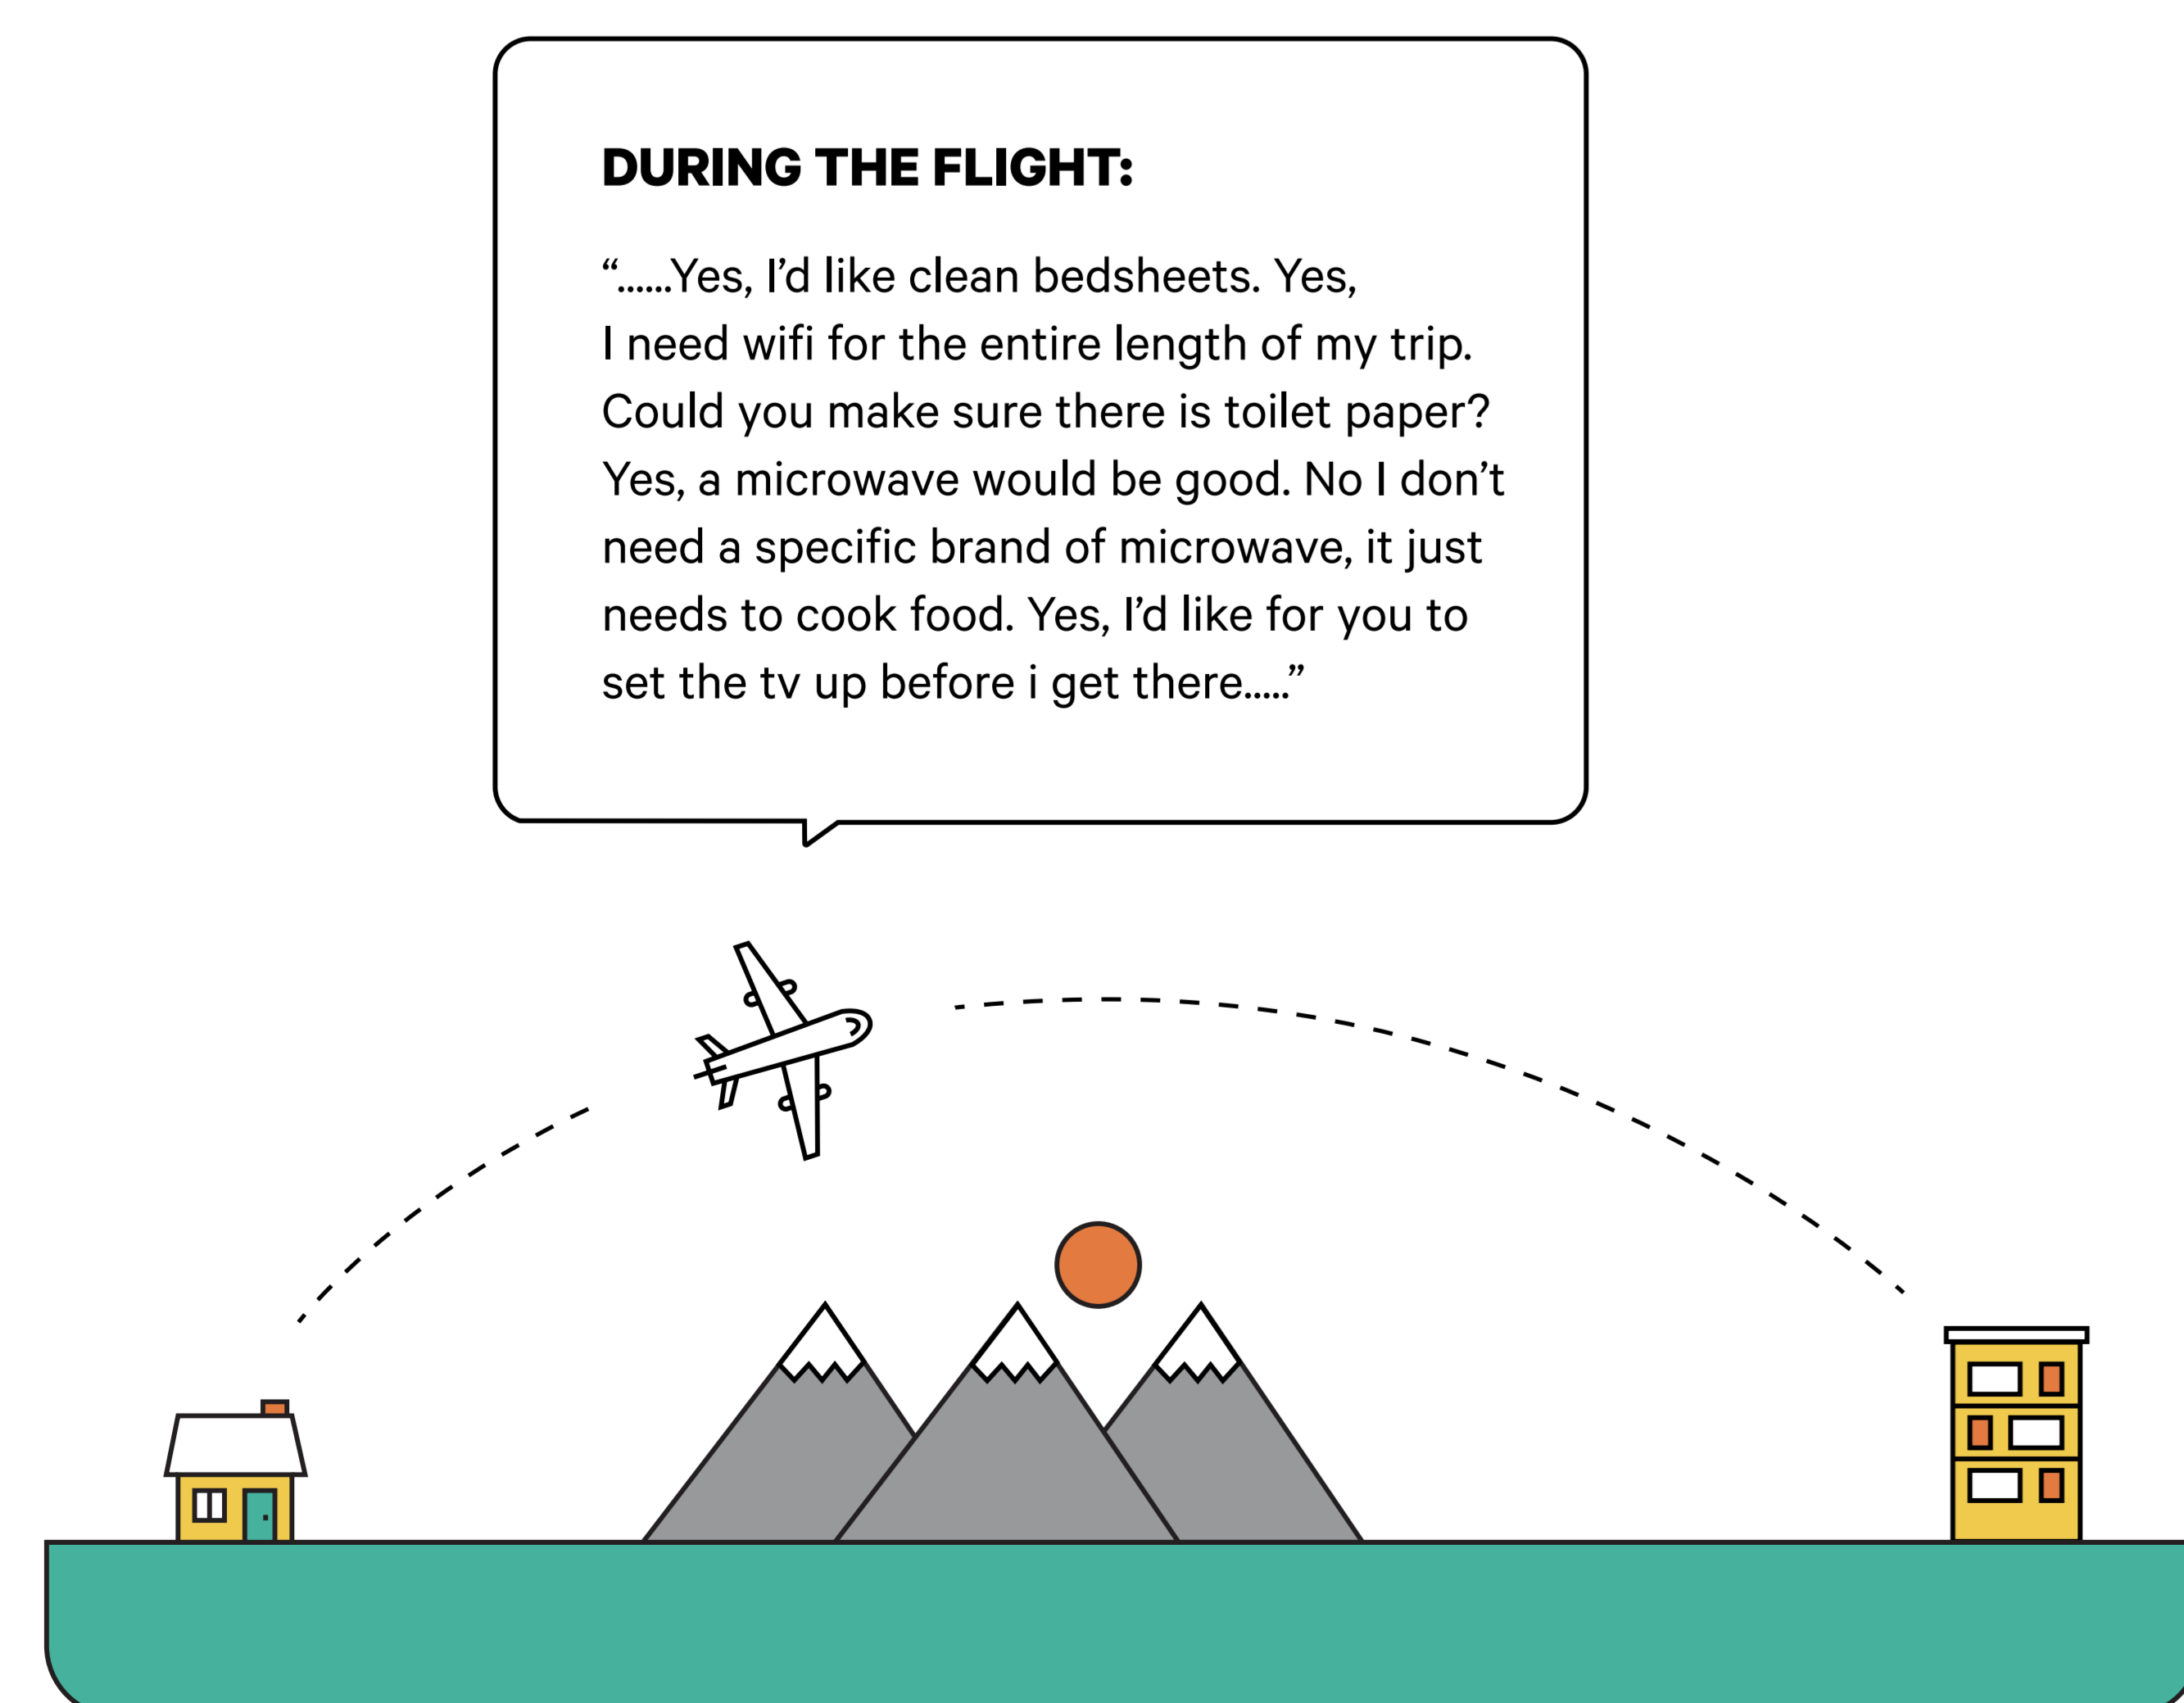

Step 3: Sign your contracts

Once each hotel inspector drives to your house to calculate your family's needs, pages of contracts await your signature.

Step 4: Travel

Once you are en route, you're on point to make sure no balls are dropped.

Step 5: Check into your room

Fingers crossed you don't face any technical difficulties. Shower water is cold? The hotel staff will be happy to put you in touch with the shower head manufacturer about that warranty.

Step 6: Relax

Your trip may not be relaxing, and you'll definitely need a vacation from your vacation, but at least your project management skills got a boost.
